CHAS. F. SCOTT. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY

FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1887.

THE JUDGESHIP.

The Judgeship.

The Woodson Democrat has obtained a good bit of notoriety of late by reason of its proposal to make the election of the republican crudidate for judge in this district unanimous. Now we believe heartily in the theory that the bench should be free from political influences. We believe political trammets should be removed, and that no such consideration as favoritism should enter into the selection of a court justice. But we have watched with no little interest the progress of the idea, for which the Democrat is responsible, and we begin to doubt the sincerity it effects. Is the removal of the bench from political influence the motive which inspires our brethren over the border? A few democratic papers in the district have endorsed the Democrat but by far the greater number have remained perfectly silent.

We now rise to enquire if there is no democrat in this judicial district worthy a place on the ticket? If you are going to make Judge Stillwell's election unanimous, what will our republican friends do when we want to name a representative of our party for the bench? Will they meet us half way? Or do they only meet half way when the candidate is on their side? If the people through their spokesmen the editors of the public press, want the judgeship removed from politics, if the republicans are as ready to remove it thence as the Woodson Democrat seems to be; if they will make it so by sometimes recegnizing a democrat for the motion to make Judge Stillwell's election unanimous. If we are to do the half way basiness only when it is their candidate, count us out.—Courant.

If our neighbor had teen a little bet-

If our neighbor had been a little betthe Seventh District, the last half of the above article would hardly have been written. The record of the past shows that it is the democrats who have declined to come half way to "keep the judgeship out of politics" and not the republicans. As long as Judge Goodin (democrat) was a candidate, the republicans swung in and ter posted on the political history of date, the republicans swung in and supported him in response to the appeal for a non-partisan judiciary. But when Judge Talcott (republican) was made and the swill be published next week. He says that he and all his neighbors together of which will be published next week. He says that he and all his neighbors together of which will be published next week and children and their wives and children and their wives and children and their men servants and their maid servants and their men servants and the says that the says that he and all his neighbors together are at Emporis this week attending that those at the other church had a good time are the says that he and all his neighbors together are at Emporis this week attending the tomath that these at the other church had a good time are at Emporis this week attending the that those at the other church had a good time are at Emporis this week attending the tomath will be published next week. He says that he and all his neighbors together are at Emporis this week attending the that those at the other church had a good time are the says that he and all his neighbors together. Beve A Barber and where are the published next week. He says that he and all his neighbors together are at Emporis this week attending the commendation, yet they always. If the men serving the says they always are at Emporis this week attending the the democrate and the says that he and all his neighbors together are at Emporis this week attending that the attending the says the says the says that he are a support that the says that he are a support to the says the says that he are a support to the says that he are a support to the sa date, the republicans swung in and wote for some "independent" aspirant.
In judicial as well as in all other elections the motto of the democrats has always been "Anything to down a realways been "Anything to down a reated for the office by a convention of his party. And as far as the republicans are concerned they are well ough satisfied with the experiment to be entirely willing to observe the precedent thus established. It would be pleasant to have Judge Stillwell re-elected by acclamation, but sofar as the REGISTER is concerned it would like to see this tribute paid him as the nominee of a regularly constituted republican convention, with all the rights of future action which this implies reserved. Yet if our democratic friends decline to "fall in," and Insist on bringing a lamb of their own to the slaughter why we will endeavor to have the business attended to with neatness and J. dispatch.

We understand that the late rains and the raise in the creek resulting therefrom, washed out most of the crossing recently put in on the new road south of here.

Rains made it unadviasable to have Mr. Howard Power's exhibition last Friday night, it really merited a larger audience than that which attended on Saturday night. The picnic also was crowded out by rains.

The Maple Grove school house was nicely decorated, and a large audience greeted the exercises at that place last Sunday. Mr. Carter's essay and Rev. Johnson's remarks contained some excellent thoughts.

Through some mistake in the Rugisten's rooms the wrong one of our two letters was marked "crowded out," making latest news appear to have been two weeks ago, and that which happened two or three weeks ago, seem to have been late occurences.

As an example Mr. Harry Brown, not Power, sold his horses three weeks ago, and we were made to say last week.

I suppose you have not forgotten this open countenance of mine. It does me a heap of good to smile on you again.

Just been down to see my old friends,

It does my heart good to think of all the goods they have sold me for so little money, and how happy they have made me and mine. They showed me their $3.50 SUIT, with a good pair of suspenders thrown in. I did not think of buying anything, but could not leave a bargain like that. I told them I would take the suit and a pair of their $2.50 CALF BOOTS. Think of a whole suit and a pair of boots for $6.00.

That is the way our customers feel after trading with us. We have selected the most complete stock of and all other goods in our line ever bought by us. Remember, we are sole agents for the Giesecke Boot and Shoe; also the Emery and Bryant-Brown noted $3.00 Shoe, Orr Overalls and Eighmie Shirt.
